

Mother of The Bride Role

My daughter's tied the knot!

Traditionally as the mother, there are several duties to perform from the planning of the wedding to the actual day of the event itself. Some duties are: -

- Send out invitation and monitor the replies
- Help with sorting out the guest list
- Hire cars
- Book a great photographer

.....And plenty more. But these days, you do not need to get involved so deeply and rather you help your daughter with decisions instead of making them for her. Also this way you're keeping the piece and not treading on each others toes.

Thing to remember is to communicate with one another so that everyone is clear on what they are doing and are happy with all the decisions being made. Teamwork is critical in making sure planning is smooth and your daughter having one of the most special days of her life.

If for whatever reason the couple feel they want to take care of the whole lot themselves, try not to feel bad as planning a wedding is very stressful and time consuming. No doubt the couple will soon burn out and come back to you for a helping hand. Or on the other hand, you would have been lucky enough to have not put yourself through any of the stress and can happily enjoy the day of the wedding.
